Staff Development Days geared towards effective hybrid instruction strategies.	Increased student engagement.	Yes	Continue	Teachers continue to use the technology with which they are most familiar with. These applications primarily include Canvas and Nearpod. Teachers continue to explore additional applications introduced in professional learning communities and by CCSD.	Staff Development Days for the 22-23 school year will continue the discussion of technology needs, goals, and trainings in order to further incorporate technology in everyday classroom instruction. Staff surveys will be provided in order to gain teacher feedback and design next steps.	Teachers continue to need additional funding for applications like Kahoot which is now charging for its services. Teachers continue to need more time during the contracted year in order to both learn and implement these strategies into their lesson plans.

Engage students in both activities and athletic programs.	Students build self-confidence and buy into the overall culture of classrooms and the school at large.	Yes	Continue	Coaches/Advisors have come to the conclusion that both advertising as well as having well-rounded athletic/activities programs are essential for participation. Our Activities Office continue to facilitate student interest and it has led to almost doubling the amount of clubs offered to our students to participate in after school. Our Athletic Office continues to add more athletes to its rosters by retaining student athletes.	Continue to provide students with well-rounded athletic and activity opportunities to enhance their high school experience in a positive manner. Continue adding clubs and continue adding athletes to our already existing programs by advertising on social media and utilizing the school website.	Fundraising ideas continue to be needed for both clubs and athletics in order to continue providing students with the varied opportunities they now have at their disposal. Community sponsors would add a great deal of support and contributions to both our clubs and athletic programs as well as a partnership with our neighbors.
